It Cost a Window.

Celebration of the last evening of the Fair indulged in some fun last night that cost the Journal-Miner a window in the composing room. The young men, if they are sports, will donate about $4 for a new glass, and there won't be anything more said about it. A member of the night force saw and can identify two of the young men, who were playing the game of "knock him through the sash."

Dancing Class.

Resuming this week its regular program of activities, the Y. W. C. A. will organize the class in aesthetic dancing announced before the financial campaign just completed. The class will be organized Tuesday night at the association house on N. Marina, and all who are interested in this new feature of the "Y" program are cordially invited to be present. The class in folk dancing for adults will be held at the same time, as announced yesterday.

Webb Brothers Wagon.

Among the interesting minor features of the fair was a small team and wagon carved from wood and painted a shining black and red. The exhibit, to be seen in the Navajo county agricultural display, was carved in 52 hours, by Henry Webb of Webb brothers sawmill at Pine Crest, almost all the work being done with a pocket knife. The wagon carries a load of timber "to our customers." The harness and trimmings are made of metal and leather, and the whole thing is a very clever piece of work.

During his term of service, Sgt. Deamore bought 320 acres of farm land, and through his stay in Arizona he has decided to locate in this state.

Y. W. C. A. Rest Room.

A cozy and very popular place of rest at the fair grounds was the Young Women's Christian Association booth in charge of officers of the association. Each day of the fair, women came from all parts of the grounds to make use of the cool shade and comfortable chairs provided by the "Y" for their convenience.

Dressing-room facilities were at hand for those who wished to "freshen up," a cordial reception being extended to a feminine member of the athletic troupe at the grounds who found these facilities convenient. The "Y" was present with a welcome and a quiet place for all who cared for them, and it was evident from the number of those always in the rest-room that its presence was greatly appreciated.
